

“Every foreign power you can think of is trying to look after its own interests in Libya. No one is excluded. This is the name of the game. This is politics. Countries have interests in Libya and everybody is looking out for their own.”

- Mahmoud Jibril, a leader of the NATO-backed uprising against Muammar Qadhafi

TOC

Chapter 1 Libya: Year Zero

Chapter 2 Libya from the Ottomans to King Idris

Chapter 3 Canada’s “international responsibility”

Chapter 4 The Just Society and the Jamahiriya

Chapter 5: The Mad Dog

Chapter 6: Lockerbie: A sprawling affair

Chapter 7: Globalization and the end of an alternative

Chapter 8: “No project has ever had budgets like this”

Chapter 9: The Canada-Libya thaw

Chapter 10 “The hottest of hot spots”

Chapter 11 The nationalization threat

Chapter 12 He will not last long”

Chapter 13 Canada’s role in the destruction of Libya

Chapter 14 Oil, militias, and the second civil war

Chapter 15 The rise of multipolarity, the fall of SNC-Lavalin

Chapter 16 The SNC-Lavalin affair

Chapter 17 Libyan tragedy, Canadian guilt

Bibliography